THOUGHT and COMMENT BUILDING

Building in Richmond during the current year promises to pass the two million mark and from present indications April will be the record month of the year.

And from present indications more homes will be constructed in Richmond during the year 1926 than were constructed during the five years preceding January 1, 1926.

March with a record of 31 new homes which crashed all previous records for this city contributed a healthy proportion to the 200 or more homes that will be constructed.

Nearly every block in the city can now boast of a new home that has either just been completed or that is in the course of construction.

Although the four, five and six room homes are the most prevalent in the new construction the type of buildings that are being put up appear to be of a better quality than those of the past.

It is especially gratifying to note that so many homes are being constructed for the working man with a small salary.

Improved transportation facilities are making the laboring man feel more secure in purchasing his home.

As soon as Richmond can boast of a more diversified payroll than it has at the present time there is every indication that the increase in homes here will be much larger than the average increase in the past.

The average working man will not buy a home when he realizes that the loss of his position may entail the removal of his family to another city and the immediate sale of his home at a probable loss. He is more content to live in a neighboring city or some place which is closer to the center of the industrial area of the Eastbay so that he will have an even break for employment in any section of the Eastbay from San Leandro to Richmond.

This situation however seems to be clearing up for Richmond. The increased payrolls of the Standard Sanitary Company will also help to boost the growth of homes in the East Richmond section.

Richmond may well look toward a year of much building and a healthy increase in its population. It will take work however and organizations which have as their aim the betterment of conditions in this city as well as the general advancement of the entire community will need to be on their toes throughout the year which is now raging between the cities from San Leandro to Richmond for more payrolls an increased population. With a little work Richmond can get more than its share.

General Andrews Admits That 875 Out of 10,000 Discharged for Corruption

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 6.—A series of startling disclosures of widespread corruption in the prohibition service and the ramifications of the bootlegging industry were made today by General Lincoln C. Andrews, "Dry" czar under a hot fire of questions shot at him by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. They included:

Out of 10,000 officials employed by the prohibition unit since its establishment, 875 have been discharged for corruption, bribery, extortions. Of this number 118 have been convicted, mostly on conspiracy charges. Twenty-three were convicted on charges of violating the prohibition act.

Prior to his administration, Andrews said, dry agents were ap-

Letters In Army Trial Declared To Be Forgeries

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Charges that the letters alleged to have been written by Captain Orville L. Clappitt, army chaplain, in which he inferred his responsibility for her condition and promised "to help you in your troubles" were forged by Miss Lucille Swallow of Kansas City whose sensational charges resulted in the court-martial of the chaplain, were made today when the army trial was resumed at the Presidio.

As the court martial resumed this morning after a recess of several weeks, it was halted shortly before noon and continued until tomorrow because of the sudden illness of one of the officers on the court.

The police have sent a warning to all the police departments in the bay region to be on a look out for the car.

It is thought by the officials that the car was stolen by the same band of thugs who have been stealing cars in Oakland and Berkeley during the past two or three months.

MACKAY MAY FORGIVE ELLEN AND BERLIN

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, April 6.—London and Paris learned tonight that the complete reconciliation of Clarence Mackay, American telegraph millionaire, and his daughter, Ellen, recently married to the son of the late Irving Berlin, is now within sight.

It is reported here that, though the first step toward the restoration of harmony in the Mackay family was recently taken by Mrs. Berlin's father, the peace move was prompted by Mackay's second daughter, Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, following intervention by Mrs. James A. Stillman.

Mackay's feelings are said to have undergone a radical change about the time he visited Mrs. O'Brien on the occasion of the birth of her baby.

Both Mrs. Berlin and Mrs. Stillman have been in London lately and met frequently, thus giving Ellen an opportunity to return to the set in which she figured for so long as a close friend of Anne Stillman, the now married daughter of the Stillmans.

Friends of the Mackay family believe that the way is now paved for the return of the Berlins to New York social life with the approval of Clarence Mackay, who it is believed, has not carried out his reported intention to remove Ellen's name from his will.

ARMY OFFICER'S WIFE BROUGHT INTO TRIAL ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Sergeant Barnes Testifies That Mrs. Aikin Was Familiar with Their Robbery Plans

SALINAS, April 6.—The name of Mrs. Aikin, wife of Lieutenant Clarence Kennedy Aikin on trial at Salinas in connection with the planned hold-up of the Monterey Theaters company, was brought into the hearing yesterday during the testimony of Sergeant Charles C. Barnes, alleged accomplice of Aikin in the holdup robbery.

Sergeant Barnes testified that Aikin drove back to the Presidio to tell Mrs. Aikin that "we couldn't knock the safe over as soon as we had expected, so she would not worry."

He declared that Mrs. Aikin knew of the attempted robbery and was waiting in the officers' quarters for news of its success.

The sergeant flinched under cross-examination of the defendant's attorneys when he was accused of making good a threat to "get that—Aikin cashiered out of the army."

Aikin's chief counsel, J. A. Baridin, charged that Sergeant Barnes had boasted to a police officer in San Diego that he "got one officer during the war and Aikin was the next."

Barnes denied ever having seen Walter Gray, the police officer, and refused to identify him when the officer was brought into the court room.

The sergeant repeated his former story and told how Lieutenant Aikin planned the robbery and how he saw the officer put the burglar tools in a bag. He said that they were scheduled to complete the job by 1 o'clock a. m. The delay caused by the manager of the theater staying until 1:30 o'clock caused Aikin to drive back to the Presidio to notify Mrs. Aikin, he said.

Second Longest Toll Cable Built Here

WORK RUSHED ON ADDITION TO TOLL LINES

Long Distance Cable Between San Francisco and Sacramento 2nd Longest in World

WORK IS BEING RUSHED
Special Repeater Equipment Is To Be Housed in Special Building at Crockett

Construction on a long distance toll cable between San Francisco and Sacramento, the second longest toll cable in the United States is now under construction by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. according to an announcement made today by George Calvert, manager of the company here.

The company has for some time been planning the improvements and the cold spell in January, when the fog settled and froze on the wires near Crockett, caused the telephone company to rush the work.

The new cable will provide additional facilities for long distance service between San Francisco and Sacramento and points beyond. This cable is so long as to make necessary at an intermediate point the installation of long distance repeaters and associated equipment whose functions are to relay and tensify the voice currents transmitted over these cable circuits. This repeater station and its equipment will be located at Crockett and is the first instance on the Pacific Coast where a cable has been installed so long as it requires an intermediate repeating point.

The new building now being erected at Crockett to house this long distance repeater equipment will be Class "A" fireproof, reinforced concrete construction, one story and basement in height. The building will cost over $35,000 and with its associated equipment will total approximately $240,000.

The new toll cable will be placed underground from Eighth and Peralta streets, Oakland to San Pablo and Blake street, El Cerrito and aerially on the transcontinental toll lead to a point one mile east of Crockett, where it will cross the Carquinez Straits by submarine cable. Cable houses will be erected at Eckley on the south side of the straits and at Dillon Point on the north. Loading coils each will be installed at various points along the route of the underground cable.

The total cost of the entire project including the building at Crockett will be in the neighborhood of $2,100,000.

HUGE LIQUOR HAUL IS MADE IN THREE RAIDS

Wines and liquors valued at approximately $325,000 were seized in three raids staged by prohibition officers in San Francisco yesterday. The outstanding cache of wines was found at 367 Bay street when the officers led by Colonel Sam Johnson after twisting through secret passages and creeping down a hidden runway stumbled upon an underground winery constructed like the famous wine caves of France.

Check of the contents in the wine cave revealed that approximately 100,000 gallons of wines valued at between $180,000 and $300,000 were stored in the cellar. The subterranean passages and storerooms under Bay street at a depth of over 100 feet are believed to have been dug years ago. Authorities believe that the cavern is the headquarters of a wine-smuggling gang operating along the Pacific coast and a check of the ring is expected to reveal a gang of conspirators rivaling that recently brought to light in Chicago.

The house, under which the cavern was constructed, was empty at the time of the raid and officers believe that the gang received a tip before the raid was staged. The owners of the wine are suspected however and warrants for their arrest will be issued.

500 gallons of jackass brandy was seized in a raid at 2156 Leavenworth street. Besides stills and equipment, $3,000 worth of sugar was also found. The stock seized in this raid is valued at $15,000. The officers arrested Filippo Torre.

Three men, Primo Bonifranco, Astora Giovanni and Jake Poll, were arrested following the third raid staged at 921 Montgomery street, where stock and equipment valued at $10,000 was seized. Flattery is the praise we hear given to other people—Good Hardware.

Attempt to Extort $2,500 From Rich Man Is Foiled

PALO ALTO, April 6.—An extortion plot is believed to have been developed here today when Albert C. Hooper, wealthy banker, found a note on a table in his home signed "The Crows." The note demanded that Hooper send $2,500 by his chauffeur to the county bridge at a specified time and hand it to a man who would meet him. The note warned the banker that a false move on his part would result in his home being dynamited.

Hooper reported the mysterious note to the police and under instructions of the police the chauffeur was sent with a dummy package to the appointed spot but no one appeared.

TEN MILLIONS FOR SCHOOL PROPAGANDA

An effort is to be made to break down American nationalism through the schools, according to the National Republic, which in the current issue, quotes a speaker at the recent convention in Washington of the National Educational Association, as declaring that a fund of ten million dollars is being raised to teach school children in America and throughout the world that nationalism means war and internationalism means peace. The National Republic continues:

"An excess of the national spirit has not led this nation into any one of the wars in which it has been engaged, although the lack of it has more than once brought about a degree of military and naval unpreparedness which has invited attack and endangered the country when war has been forced upon us. There is no reason to believe that outside influences will be permitted to carry on political propaganda in the schools of any country other than the United States, so that this highly financed program of internationalism in the opinion of many will only mean an effort to denationalize the United States. Who is willing to contribute ten million dollars to use the schools of America as a means of denationalization, and why? How is this money to be spent? Not in the purchase of text books, not in the employment of teachers or in meeting any of the other ordinary expenses of operating the schools. Is it the idea to influence the preparation of text books? Already some history text books are in use in the schools in which the achievement of American patriots in behalf of their country are minimized and the idea is held forth that the loyalty of the citizen is due to the world in general rather than first to his own country. Is it the idea to influence the attitude of the teachers themselves? Already they are the targets of many denationalizing influences. Is love of the country a dangerous influence in the United States? Is it too strongly impressed upon school children as matters now stand? Has any private organization the right to spend ten million dollars forcing internationalism upon school children through the schools which belong to all the people and under our form of government are within the control of states and smaller units? This suggestion of the expenditure of ten million dollars to make the schools agencies of what is called 'internationalism' under the utterly untenable theory that such internationalism means peace, is significant of the magnitude of the movement to break down American nationalism."

TROUBLE WITH THE INDIANS

As a result of the war, France had ceded to England all the territory which lay upon the St. Lawrence and between the Mississippi and the eastern mountain, north and south.

England had no difficulty in providing a government for the province of Quebec and also for the lands in the far south; but between these lay vast territories.

The Lords Commissioners for Trade and plantations in London wished to keep settlers out of these lands in order that they might be left as a great hunting ground for the Indians, thus keeping a permanent source of supply for the fur skins which enriched trade between England and her colonies.

But meanwhile it was necessary to carry England's power among the Indians and make them know that she, and not the king of France, was now sovereign there. The Indians were slow to believe this.

The French had made them welcome at their frontier posts, and did not drive off the game, as Duquesne had told them before the war. The French had shown them a certain gracious courtesy and consideration and she had been willing to be comrades with them.

But the Indians had suffered at the hands of the English, whom they feared and hated. The war with the French was scarcely over when English settlers began to pour across the Alleghenies. There were already Indian tribes who knew the distress and dread of exile, having been driven into newer territories. So they rallied to the desperate business of driving the English within the barriers of the Alleghenies again.

Pontiac, a chief of the Ottawas, led the Indians. The English rallied from the surprise attack, stubborn and undaunted. The bitter war waged on for two years. The work was perilous and slow, but before the year 1765 was out, Pontiac acknowledged himself beaten and sued for peace.

Tales of Troubadours

THE most original lover of all time might well be conferred upon Pierre Vidal of Toulouse. His biographer, however, gave him a different distinction and called him "the maddest man in all the world."

This fact did not prevent his being tremendously popular with the ladies of France and Spain through which countries he traveled, and his biographer, in describing his reckless and scatterbrained wanderings, says rather mildly, "He committed a thousand follies." From this one might gather that his trips were not dull.

Among the many ladies with whom he fell in love was one who seems to have been one of the earliest of the "vamps." She evidently was a person of marked characteristics for she was known as Louve which meant the "She-Wolf." For a long time she resisted the amorous advances of Pierre Vidal and it was in winning her love that he seems to be entitled to the palm of "the most original lover of all time."

Determined to tame the "She-Wolf" he dressed himself in wolf skins and had himself hunted by a pack of hounds. The hounds overtook him just under the windows of her castle. Here Pierre met up a fight for his life against the blood-thirsty hounds.

Apparently the fair lady must have said to herself, "Here at last is a wolf worthy of the 'She-Wolf'." For she went out and joined him and, after binding up his wounds, fell violently in love with him.

Pierre was not what might have been termed a constant lover. When the Crusades started, he went to the Holy Lands. He had gone as far as the Island of Cyprus when he met a Greek girl who was presented to him as a person of royal blood. Forgetting the "She-Wolf" promptly and completely, Pierre married the beautiful Greek and took her with him on the crusades.

Spring Tonics

"SPRING FEVER" is the term facetiously applied to "that tired feeling" which we all get when the first mild days succeed a long winter. It is a general letting down of the energies which have been keyed up by the cold. We feel lazy and unambitious, and our appetites flag.

Yet, during this period of readjustment of the human system to the change in temperature, it is essential to keep up the strength and vitality. The body needs, in particular, a fresh supply of iron. It becomes the problem of the housewife to serve such foods as will not only tempt the appetites of her family, but re-energize their systems.

Children, too, suffer from this general "letting down" in the early spring. Formerly, herb-teas and certain medicines were administered as "spring tonics." But nowadays it is considered more effective to eat foods rich in iron, than to dose with medicines containing that element. For in food we get nourishment as well as a tonic.

All green vegetables, such as spinach, cabbage (sauerkraut), asparagus, Brussels sprouts and lettuce are rich in iron and vitamins. So are carrots. Spinach and sauerkraut are additionally valuable as system-cleansers. Asparagus is particularly refreshing, regardless of the season, by buying them in tins, we need not wait for our spring tonics. Rhubarb is another excellent tonic, because of its refreshing and appetizing "tang." It also may be purchased in cans, when the fresh is unavailable. It is particularly good for us in the springtime.

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

CHAPTER I

Several things had made Clifford Dudley reluctantly take to the road that hot summer. In those days, whenever you thought of Clifford Dudley, you thought of once of "The Artist," that seductive play of fifteenth century Italian morals or lack of morals, which had won for him his first starring sign on Broadway, and his first big type in the theatrical columns. Even Clifford Dudley, after a year of six nights and two matinees weekly of "The Artist," found it hard to disassociate himself from the part. His manager, a smart, if tactful Irishman, said of him that he walked in his street clothes as if they were the doublet and hose of his role in the theatre. But never to Clifford's face. Mr. Dugan was tactful. To Dudley's face, in the second spring of "The Artist," Mr. Dugan said as follows:

"Now, Cliff, my boy, we'll have to be givin' up the ship here. Which is a good thing, for if you don't go out and show yourself to the sticks soon, my boy, the number of women desiring their husbands to come to New York and see the Great Lover'll be so large that the population of these United States will be set back I don't know how many millions. And we can't have that, Cliff, my boy. As patriotic Americans, we gotta guard against that at all costs!"

This, said with Mr. Dugan's yielding Irish smile, which completely belied the hard, hard eyes of the tribe of theatrical managers, eyes like two small blue marbles, had its effect on Clifford, especially when backed by Clifford's arguments. Did not Clifford want his fame as a Great Lover to penetrate to the farthest reaches to the play, when there was a play. It was known in theatrical parlance as a "good show town."

"Why in the h— did they here?" said Clifford Dudley, the Great Lover, bethinking himself of the sleepy Main Street seen from the train, as the company scuttled out just before theatre time.

He never finished the sentence. For just then a piece of chewing gum, parked in the sweet long ago by one of the high school lasses, fastened itself to the Florentine extremities of "The Artist." He sat down on a property chair, not yet set in its place exactly for the scene, and jerked. But the chewing gum used by high school lasses is noted for its sticking qualities.

With what would have been a yell of wrath anywhere but back stage, the Great Lover sprang from his chair, and, hopping on one foot, pounced upon the manager in the wings.

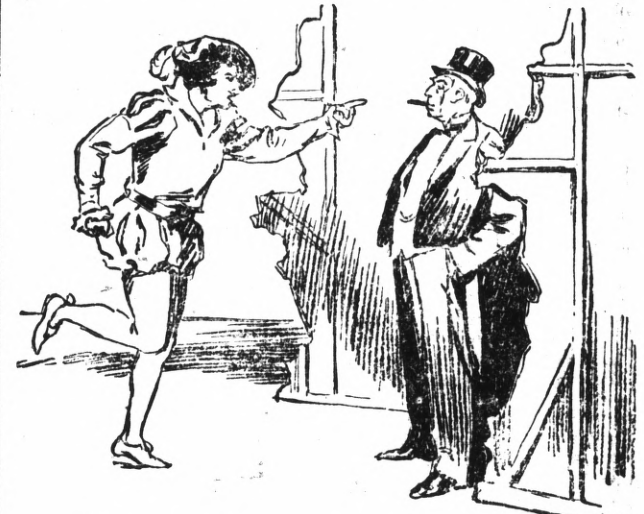

"Scene No. 1," said the manager under his breath.

"What the blank, blank, blank," cried "The Artist," working himself up to his most effective passion, "do you mean, Williams, by booking me in a hick house that's coated with chewing gum? And you expect me to give my usual performance here, do you? DO YOU? Put on my understudy, if you will. I leave town tonight."

"The Great Dud's having another tantrum," sighed the old character actor to the grease paint in his dressing room.

"The Kid Himself is cuttin' up rough again," sang Sally Short, "The Artist's" model, to the character woman who was helping her into her draperies.

The company calmly went on dressing. Williams, the manager, of these United States? Seeing him, would not the people clamor for him in motion pictures, and, if so, would it not mean the part of "The Artist" in the moving picture version, with emoluments not to be despised?

The Great Lover pounced upon the manager in the wings.

Besides, there was what might be called a personal reason. There was a little girl in the fact, of a breach of promise suit against Clifford Dudley by a chorus girl of no importance whatever, whom Clifford had known and wooed and won when he was of not so much importance either. Mr. Dugan, "his boy's" interests closely at heart, had advised him shrewdly:

"If you go and stay away all summer an' the case gets put off and put off, my boy, this girl being probably out of a job in the summer season, is going to get mighty hard up, and then your lawyer comes along with an offer to settle say for two thou, and this girl is going to accept. That's what they all do. You can get into all the messes you want later on, Cliff, my boy, when you're the cat's pajamas, but at the present moment, take my advice and lay down your money now. That's the way to get out of it."

Clifford said and did as he was told. On the late August evening, he found himself, not at one of the cool Long Island resorts, where the smart semi-society of New York which goes in for well-known actors, had made shift to entertain him last summer.

He found himself, instead, yawning behind the dusty curtain of the musty Winesville Opera House, where church quartettes "entertained" in winter, where high-school boys and girls tripped awkwardly in their annual performances of "something from Shakespeare," where one-night stand musical comedy shows went nightly through their paces, and where many a trained seal and dancing bear had catered to the artistic sensibilities of Winesville.

Once Edwina Booth, as the mad Prince, had collected a record audience in Winesville, and ever since Winesville had traditionally gone calmly took out his knife, and, jerking the Great Lover's foot to his knee, neatly sliced off the gum. "Sorry," he said pacifically. "You know these towns. No booze but plenty of gum. If you don't feel like going on, I'll put in D'Alvino. He can't touch you, I think, but the company thinks he's a wow! House's sole out."

He ambled away. The Great Lover sighed a sigh of relinquishment and his head dropped to his hefty chest, displayed to great advantage by his short Florentine jacket.

"Well, if that's the case," he said sadly, "I must go on in spite of everything. We can't disappoint the public, can we, Williams? We artists!"

"Uh-huh," mumbled Williams. Stepping carefully to avoid possible further deposits of prehistoric chewing gum, Clifford went back to his vantage point. He remembered he had been about to look through the peephole and see what the house held.

"Yokels," he muttered under his breath. And true enough, the population of Winesville, dressed for the occasion in its best hats imitated from the Ross Department Store from the nearest Paris, which was Pittsburgh, rustling its best summer dresses (not indeed of organza and calico, but of highly over-decorated silks) with the too tight-fitting suits of its sporting men, did not look very inviting to a pair of eyes inured to the panorama of Times Square and Fifth Avenue.

However, gleam came into Clifford's eyes. There, in the front row, sat a really pretty girl next to a blond yokel who wore a pair of not too clean white flannel trousers. She sat very next to him indeed. Their shoulders touched. She was deliciously round, with a round, demure face, bobbed and wavy chestnut hair, and eyes of the kind known as melting. At this moment, they were melting into the blue eyes of the boy next to her. She had a decided dimple. Clifford saw it when she took a candy with two coy fingers from the box on her lap and set it daintily into the mouth of the blond boy.

1926 Eucharistic Congress A Spiritual World's Fair; Catholic Leaders to Come

(By Universal Service)
CHICAGO, April 6.—Like a camp of Crusades, with medieval pageantry in the breeze, and huge yellow-gold canopies forming the cathedral arches of the vast open-air cathedral, the grounds of St. Mary's of the Lake at Mundelein, Ill., will afford a panorama of the spiritual world's fair to which the International Eucharistic Congress June 20-24 has been compared.

It is there that the great procession of the closing day will be held with the papal legate carrying the great gold ostensorium with the eucharistic wafer through the kneeling ranks of hundreds of thousands of Catholic pilgrims.

Venerable prelates from all parts of the Christian world and eminent Catholic laymen will head the delegations of pilgrims who will come to Chicago for the spiritual feast in the living presence of Christ in the Eucharist.

France's Prime Minister
France, where the first Eucharistic Congress was held in 1881, already has marshaled its spiritual forces to be led by Louis-Ernest Cardinal Dubois, the venerable archbishop of Paris. According to word received by the congress headquarters yesterday, Marshal Ferdinand Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies during the world war, and his aide, Gen. Edouard de Castelnau, the "savior of Nancy" plan to be members of the party of Cardinal Dubois.

Other prelates of France in the cardinal's party will be the Rt. Rev. George F. X. Crente, bishop of Lemans and the Rt. Rev. Thomas Heylen, bishop of Namur, who is president of the permanent committee of the congress. The Comte Henri D'Yanville, one of the most prominent Catholic laymen of France, is secretary of the permanent committee.

The acceptance of Marshal Foch to revisit the United States is virtually assured, as the aged soldier has expressed his desire to return to the scene of enthusiastic welcome, accorded him after the war.

Foch Among Visitors
Cardinal Dubois will deliver the principal address to the French division of the congress which will hold its meetings in the armory of the 131st infantry, Illinois National Guard. The complete French program has not yet been received, but it is planned to have prominent French laymen address their pilgrims during the stay in Chicago.

The wounds of war will be forgotten in the spiritual reunion of the congress—for kneeling side by side with the French and English pilgrims will be those of Germany and Austria, whose delegations have chartered four steamers for their trip to the United States.

Bavarians Coming
The venerable Cardinal von Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, who recently paid a visit to Chicago, will head the Bavarian pilgrims. His address before the district congress in ancient Spire last June is regarded as one of the classic sermons of the Catholic church.

The chief problem is that of housing the pilgrims, whose numbers have been estimated at a million by railroad officials, who have taken the Montreal Congress of fifteen years ago as their criterion. At Montreal 750,000 pilgrims were present at the ceremonies, not counting the people of Montreal itself. Rev. John P. Schiffer, chairman of the housing committee, declared yesterday that housing plans have been virtually completed.

Aristocracy Is Losing Out Even In Europe
O. D. TOLICHUS (By Universal Service)
BERLIN, April 6.—Aristocracy is losing out even in Europe. Before the war, and even for a short time after it, everybody in Vienna was a "baron." At least to the waiter and the "droschke" driver who was waiting for a tip. What the "baron" was demoted to if the tip was not sufficient, is something else, of course.

But first, he was a "baron." Now no waiter or driver in Vienna would think of calling anybody a baron. The barons now usually are out of cash since the war. The honorary title today is "Herr Direktor!"

Directors, bank industrial and otherwise, are the welcome cash customers today. In Germany, the title has become a plain, "Herr Doktor." Everybody is a "Herr Doktor" here, as long as he sport a white collar.

Crash Of Fokker Plane, Last Of 3 Wrecked In Alaska, Delays Start Of Wilkins Flight Over North Pole

This photograph was taken at the aviation field at Fairbanks, Alaska, after one of the Fokker planes of the Wilkins Detroit Polar Expedition had been assembled there. The machine crashed on the tundra in making its first trial flight. Two other planes to be used by the expedition had been destroyed previously and a plan for the proposed flight over the North Polar regions were temporarily halted.

New Tax On Jewels and Fur To Anger Women of England

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, April 6.—Women are to contribute more than ever to the British Treasury, according to the latest forecasts of the Budget which Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will introduce into the House of Commons in the middle of April.

Last year Churchill struck a serious blow at the cost of women's clothes when he imposed a tax on imported silk. Stockings, lingerie and other items of wearing apparel made of silk jumped in price, and many women have suffered heavy fines in the past twelve months for trying to smuggle silk into the country.

Now jewels and furs are to be taxed, if the Chancellor's present intentions are carried out. Of the various proposals submitted to him for new sources of revenue, none appeals more to Churchill than imposes on articles of luxury. On the theory that women who can afford to buy furs and jewels—or the men who buy these things for women—can also pay a little more towards liquidating the cost of the war, the Chancellor will not hesitate to carry on his policy of making the women pay.

Churchill is also debating the idea of a tax on betting. The proposal has been up before Parliament already and a special committee has reported on the difficulty of collecting such a tax, but the Treasury has not discarded the idea. The yield of a betting tax has been estimated at twenty $100,000,000 and $25,000,000 yearly. Here again is a tax that would hit women, tens of thousands of whom back horses in this country, for no one pretends that the burden would fall on the book-makers, who would merely shorten the odds given against horses so as to deduct the tax from the baker's winnings.

Last April Churchill budgeted for a national expenditure of nearly $1,000,000,000 and a revenue of $1,000,000,000. Since then the government subsidy to the coal industry has brought the estimate of expenditure to $1,100,000,000. The revenue will be in accordance with the estimate, and it is expected that the deficit caused by the coal subsidy will be made up by borrowing.

For the next financial year the debt charges will be about the same as for the past year—$1,950,000,000. For the Army, Navy and Air Force there will be a slight reduction from $600,000,000 to $585,000,000, and civil expenditure will cost $1,500,000,000.

Business concerns are bringing heavy pressure to bear on the Chancellor to reduce the cost of inland postage from three cents to two cents—reverting to the historic penny post first inaugurated in this country.

German Courts Give Wife or Widow Gifts Spouse Gave Others
(By Universal Service)
BERLIN, April 6.—The German supreme court has decided that the wife or widow has a right to demand a return of all gifts given by her husband to the "other woman."

The decision has just been made in a case in which the widow demanded and obtained the return of a piece of real estate which her husband had presented to his lady-love.

The German Supreme Court ruled that such a gift is "contrary to good morals" and an "indecent business," and therefore null and void.

The German protests against this decision as "it completely outlaws the 'other woman,'" and in effect makes illegal all gifts made to her by her lover and therefore with also her acceptance of them.

Seek New Moses To Rewrite the Commandments
VINA LINDSAY (By Universal Service)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 6.—An opportunity is open to some bright, ambitious young man to become a modern Moses. A challenge to religious liberals to produce a man, committee or commission competent to revise or rewrite the Ten Commandments has been issued by religious fundamentalists here.

A declaration by Dr. Clarence E. Reidbach, pastor of the Westminster Congregational Church, that the Ten Commandments should be revised to fit present day conditions has transferred the basis of the fundamentalist-modernist controversy from the Garden of Eden to the lecture hall.

The storm first broke when Dr. J. J. Evans, pastor of the First Baptist Church and former president of William Jewell College, in dedicating the new educational building of his Sunday school, said that such a thing as Old Testament heroes as Noah, Abraham and David should not be glorified to Sunday school children, but that the emphasis should be placed on the teachings of Christ.

Dr. Reidbach, supporting Dr. Evans, went further and said that the Ten Commandments should be revised. "I even believe that if Christ were here today he would revise some of his teachings to fit present day situations," said Dr. Reidbach.

Now, churches are passing resolutions in support of the Ten Commandments as recorded on tablets of stone and are defying modernists to produce any better ones on a present day type-writer.

The Rev. Harry Von Bruch, revivalist at the Tabernacle Baptist Church, which has taken the lead in upholding the Decalogue and the Biblical patriarchs has challenged the liberals to produce a competent authority to revamp the Scriptures.

"Who is going to be the new Moses?" he asks.

The first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth commandments especially need revision, Dr. Reidbach believes.

"The commandment 'Thou shalt have no other gods' does not apply in this era," he says. "It was written at a time when the words 'full' and 'thrice' as conjunctives were used. Today, men worship but one God whether they call him Allah, Jehovah, Buddha or any other name."

"The injunction not to take the name of God in vain does not deserve to be listed among the ten most important rules of conduct. Swearing is a minor offense. God is not so petty or jealous as to place undue emphasis on it."

Simple Motifs Stressed in New and Original Embroideries
Needleworkers This Season Divide Their Interests Between the Wardrobe and the Home
By MONA MULLEN

SINCE practically everybody has learned how to embroider, there is a growing interest on the part of needleworkers in embroideries for the home. Having learned how to ornament their frocks and other garments, they realize the value that hand work gives to the various articles that beautify the home.

Fashion, too, has made some concessions. Once it was thought that an embroidered article could not be beautiful unless it were embellished with an elaborate design. Now one finds originality expressed in simplicity.

The boudoir set pictured is something new and well worth trying. The transfer furnishes 6 yards of border and 6 yards of scallop designed for a set consisting of a quilt protector and a pillow slip. Curtains, bureau scarf, guest towels, luncheon sets, lingerie sets, etc., also may be ornamented with the border and motifs. The simple stitches required insure speedy development. If preferred, pastel colors may be blended in an effective scheme. Complete instructions for working the set are given with the pattern.

The borders and motifs pictured are all the more effective because of their simplicity. The transfer furnishes 2 yards each of three borders, 5½, 4, and 2 inches high; two and two reverses of a motif 8½ inches high, and two neck motifs. The border motifs are also suitable for use on children's dresses, as well as women's frocks, blouses and scarfs.

Mrs. Pankhurst Is Getting Back Into Politics

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, April 6.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, pre-war leader of the Suffragettes and martyr of prison hunger strikes, is getting back into politics.

Recently she returned from Canada after a prolonged absence from this country. Since the epiphanies of 1908-1914, when the world rang with the bitter fight of English women for the vote, Mrs. Pankhurst's family has scattered. Her famous daughter, Christabel, is now in the South of France, variously reported to be running a tea-shop and writing mystical books. Sylvia, after a stormy association with the London Reds, was last reported to be in Australia.

Naturally Mrs. Pankhurst's return to the scene of her historic battles has not been passed unnoticed. Lady Astor, Lady Rhonda, Mrs. Phipps Snowden and other women foremost in public life, joined with the Six Point Group (a strong feminist organization) in giving a banquet in her honor.

The banquet was largely a reunion of the stalwarts who paved the way for the triumph of the feminist cause. Decorations were worn by many women with great pride; the ribbon, purple, white and green, of the Women's Social and Political Union, the cherished brooch made in the shape of a prison gate, the badge of those who had been to prison for the cause. An exception was Mrs. "General" Drummond, who was entitled to wear several prison and hunger-strike badges, but who attended without even a ribbon.

Lady Rhonda, the world's greatest business woman, proposing Mrs. Pankhurst's health, complained that women have not yet secured equal electoral right with men, and said a new campaign is about to open to get them.

"I should like to ask Mrs. Pankhurst a straight question," said Lady Rhonda. "Why doesn't she go into Parliament? That is her place, not only because she, perhaps more than anyone else in the country, was responsible for the fact that women can now go into Parliament, but there is no woman who could be as useful to us as she could be there."

Lady Astor, who dropped in hurriedly from the House of Commons, endorsed this view. "We shouldn't give Mrs. Pankhurst or the country any rest until we get her into Parliament," she said. "No sacrifice could be too great for any woman to get her there. I myself would gladly give her my place if only she saw her way to take it."

Mrs. Pankhurst yielded to these generous entreaties, but declined to avail herself of the unexpected offer from Lady Astor.

It is reported that Mrs. Pankhurst will put herself forward as a Conservative candidate at the next general election.

America Ambitious To Rule World Says Lord Riddell

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, April 6.—"America desires to dominate the world," said Lord Riddell, one of the leading publishers and public men of the country, in an address to Manchester business men. As the chief spokesman of David Lloyd George, when the latter was Prime Minister, Lord Riddell has attended more international conferences than any statesman and is one of the world's foremost authorities on international affairs.

"America is a very ambitious country," he said. "In the past she has had feelings towards this country that a poor relative has towards a very prosperous one. Now America's position has changed, and she has become certainly one of the world's greatest powers in the world. America's ambition is to be first in finance and trade, in political ideas, in art, science and literature, and—side by side with these ambitions there is a desire on America's part to interfere in the affairs of other countries, perhaps not officially—in many instances unofficially. But it is an interference without willingness to undertake any responsibility, and it raises a number of very difficult questions. In deed, it is one of the most important international questions in the world at the present time."

"Every American is for America. There is a good deal of criticism of America by Americans, but if anybody else pointed out to an American anything not altogether favorable to his own country, he would at once deny the truth of it and endeavor to prove that America is the best of all possible worlds."

MARION DAVIES IS STARRED AT THE CALIFORNIA

Romantic castles in Europe; devious intrigue in a European court; the romance of royal loves and bartering for kingdoms; these all come to life in the filmization of George Barr McCutcheon's famous novel, "Beverly of Graustark," presented by Cosmopolitan as Marion Davies' latest starring vehicle, and now playing at the California theatre.

The famous novel is filmed with characters that were hand-picked to follow the spirit of the author's famous tale, and thrills, romance, comedy, and the poignant tang of modern court intrigue run through it.

Miss Davies plays a dual role, one of the most difficult ever attempted, for, as the heroine, she is required to masquerade as a crown prince and be the central figure in the coronation to save a throne. She played the role with hair cut short like a man's and so thoroughly duplicated male mannerisms that the illusion is positively uncanny.

The production was staged on a lavish scale, with a great throne room scene, some remarkable settings depicting European castles, and other elaborate details. Gorgeous costumes and uniforms lend color to the story, and Miss Davies appears in a number of magnificent Parisian creations.

The cast includes many screen notables, Antonio Moreno, the recent hero of "Mare Nostrum," plays the leading male role of Danton and Roy D'Arcy, the Crown Prince of "The Merry Widow," is seen as the sinister Marquis. Creighton Hale, Paulette Goddard, Albert Gran, Charles Clary, Max Barwyn and others appear in principal parts.

Sidney Franklin, director of many of the Talmadge successes, directed the picture at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Other features on the same program include "Songs of Ireland," the first of the Famous Melody Series, in which a love drama is told to the tune of Irish folk songs with Larry Canelo, at the organ; "Ebony Cartoon," International News.

Leave Garage Door Open While You Start the Engine

SACRAMENTO, April 6.—"Leave your garage doors open when you start your engine!"

This warning was issued today by the division of motor vehicles to California motorists on receipt of word that another death had been caused by asphyxiation from carbon monoxide gas. The death occurred recently in San Francisco and caused a coroner's jury to recommend the adoption of an ordinance compelling the owners of private and public garages to post signs warning against carbon monoxide generated from the exhaust of a motor vehicle.

"This gas is so deadly that it will kill any person overcome by it within a short time unless he is rescued," the division's statement said. "A number of deaths from it have been reported in recent months."

Stockholders of the Contra Costa Finance and Loan company of Richmond increased the capital stock of the organization from $25,000 to $100,000 at the annual meeting held in Richmond yesterday.

Increasing business and the success of past business warranted the increase in the capital stock, according to Joseph L. Reed, secretary-manager of the company. The meeting, presided over by Sydney S. Clark, president of the company, marked the first anniversary of the company's founding.

Supervisors Favor Three Cent Gas Tax

Favoring a tax of three cents a gallon on gasoline, the Contra Costa county supervisors yesterday went on record for an increase of one cent per gallon on the state tax to be used in highway construction.

The action of the county supervisors disapproved of the plan set forward by Southern California supervisors who favor a state appropriation of $5,000,000 annually to be used for highway construction and endorsed the recent action of the state association of supervisors.

Supervisors Plan To Secure Site for Hall of Records

Negotiations for acquiring two strips of land in Martinez south of the county court house was ordered by the board of supervisors. With the acquisition of the property, the county will own the entire block and it is planned to erect a hall of records on the land adjoining the court house.

HUMOR ACROSS YOUR FENCE IF YOU'LL LOOK

Don't look for humor with a telescope. You'll find it right over your back-fence, or across your arm-way.

Have a look into the home of the Comets, on Sixty-sixth street (exact number gladly furnished by the management of the Richmond theatre) and you'll laugh your head off.

As this location is in New York and it would take more rubber than there is in the world for fans to stretch their collective necks that far to see, First National, a kindly disposed film producing concern, has made a picture of that cross-section of life as the Comets live it and will project it on the screen of the above mentioned theatre, commencing today.

Tab's Comet, chief wand star of the classified department of a big newspaper, furnishes Corinne Griffith a new type of character in this new production, which is a picturization of Edna Ferber's quaintly humorous magazine yarn, "Classified."

Jack Mulhall, Dard Crane, Edythe Chapman, Charles Murray, George Sidney and others comprise the supporting cast.

Other features on the same program include "Never Again," an Al St. John comedy; "Prizma," the screen magazine.

174 Lose Drivers Licenses During Last Two Years

SACRAMENTO, April 6.—The division of motor vehicles revealed today that it has handed out 174 licenses of "walking papers" during the last two years to motorists found to have run amok of a section of the law providing for revocation of the license of any person convicted three times or more during any one year of speeding or reckless driving.

Invitations to such motorists to put away their cars and walk for a year were made possible by a "three-time losers" file maintained by a division employee. The triple offenders were checked off the abstracts of violations mailed in by the fines and justices of the peace.

Division heads declared it is practically impossible for a three-time violator to escape revocation, even though the violations occur in widely separated points of the state if the proper co-operation is obtained from local justices. As soon as three convictions turn up in the records the traffic officers of the country in which the violator lives are notified and his license immediately taken up.

Extra Training Is Planned for British Team

ROBERT J. PREW
(By Universal Service)

LONDON, April 6.—Special training for the British Walker Cup team which is to oppose the American team next summer is being provided by the golfing authorities of this country.

The Surrey Golf Union has taken the lead in providing facilities for competitors belonging to the Surrey County of the 21 men selected by the Royal and Ancient Club to train for the contest. Sixteen qualified representatives of Surrey.

The county union committee has arranged that the services of the veteran ex-champions, James Braid and J. H. Taylor, shall be at the disposal of these players at any time during the next three months for the purpose of coaching and engaging in matches. The expenses of the professionals will be defrayed by the union.

The famous Mid-Surrey and Walton Heath clubs have granted the use of their courses for the training of the amateurs, who are expected as potential national representatives, to concentrate eliminating the weak points of their game. Approach shots and putting, in which the American Walker Cup players have of recent years been markedly superior to the British team, are to be perfected under the eye of the best experts of the game, and every amateur player of national fame is expected to go out to beat the par figure for every hole.

Other county unions will follow the example set by Surrey with the idea of producing a polished team of players capable of wrestling the Walker trophy from its American holders. The average professional in this country usually concedes four strokes to amateurs playing from a scratch. What the golfing authorities aim at is the production of a team of amateurs all equal in merit to Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, who can be matched with the best professionals on even terms.

Open championships will never revert to this country according to the leading golf authorities, until both amateurs and professionals adopt American methods of training—continuous practice of approach shots and putting, and intense concentration on every stroke.

The next contest for the Walker Cup takes place at St. Andrews on June 2 and 3.

Self Made Man Not Losing to the College Fighter

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, April 6.—Chicago business men declare that the self-made man is not vanishing before the college trained man. The fight is going to continue to see which will gain the topmost rung of the ladder of success, several of them said.

These statements were made in the face of statements by former secretary of agriculture Houston and Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University.

Although Doctor Farrand declared that "business is only beginning to realize the advantages of college," George E. Green, Chicago manager of the American Sugar refining company said "my college career ended with McGuffey's fourth reader. I've taken many a college professor to his class room in my automobile when he had none. And I have fired many a college man and replaced him with a self-made man."

"The trade house associations give personality and class room broad culture," Dr. Farrand said. "And they have their place in the business world. But the self-made man has his place in the doctor's or lawyer's office."

K. K. Bell, vice-president of the Calumet Baking Powder company declared that higher education is only a means to better enjoy life. "It is not essential to the selling game," he said. "Nevertheless, I would give much to have the advantage of higher education, not as an aid to business success, but as an aid to my own personal pleasures."

Mr. Houston declared that "the self-made man, the individual business genius is gone. His day is past. The business world is crying for the college trained man."

But John J. Mitchell, cashier of the Illinois Merchants Bank, said an education only helped a man to leap the hurdles in the pathway of success.

It's born in a man to succeed or fail and an education merely serves to hasten the arrival of the man who, self made, would have gotten there just the same."

Honolulu Adopts A New Custom

(By Universal Service)

HONOLULU, April 6.—This city of flowers has adopted a new floral custom as a result of the rapidly increasing number of world cruiser liners that now stop here on their way to the Orient.

The idea is to wear the territorial flower, the hibiscus, as a greeting to these transient visitors. There are several thousand different varieties of hibiscus grown here and tourist visitors never cease marveling at their varying shapes and colors.

Japan's Women Wrestlers Find Profit In Game

LUTHER A. HUSTON
(By Universal Service)

TOKYO, April 6.—Supposedly impracticable masculine strongholds have been crashing with such sickening regularity of late before the onslaughts of militant feminism that few havens of refuge remain for the harassed male. And now, so far as Japan is concerned at least, another of these has fallen. Western culture has admitted that women's place may be elsewhere than in the home, but so far as is known it never has invaded the wrestling ring. It remained for Oriental women to invade, assault and capture that citadel of beef and brains and incidentally to confound the wisecracker who dubbed the feminine the "weaker" sex.

There are in Japan four women who call themselves the champion female wrestlers of the Sunrise Kingdom. Gathered about them as novices and aspiring champions are some two dozen other women who earn a comfortable living by their activities in the wrestling arena.

The professional names of the four champions are Diamond Kiki, Dragon River Saye, Tokaido Hiss and Plum Blossom Shima. Their average weight is 190 pounds and not the least robust is the damsel who wears the delicate appellation of "Plum Blossom." Their ages range from 22 to 26 and they have been in the wrestling game about ten years.

When the quartette of champions and their entourage visited Tokyo recently they pitched a huge tent in Asakusa Park, the center of Tokyo's gay quarter. From this tented arena there came to the ears of a strolling reporter the noise of a Japanese orchestra, blending the plaintive strains of a samisen with the booming roll of drums and the harshly musical clang of bells. The gatekeeper being unsympathetic with the practice of crashing the gate which "One-Eyed" Connolly immortalized, the scribe had to pay his way in. That was a painful proceeding but proved worth the money.

Inside were several hundred spectators each with an eye glued to a hempen circle at the center of the tent. Inside this circle were two women squatting on their haunches and glaring at each other, eye to eye, like two irritated hens about to settle an argument over who found the worm.

Before the reporter could find his seat the psychological moment which is such a big factor in Japanese wrestling arrived and the two fair combatants leaped at each other. There ensued not more than thirty seconds of tremendous pushing, pulling, butting, shoving and grunting, at the end of which the ferocious "Dragon River" found herself outside the ring and the demure "Plum Blossom" was squatting at the edge of the circle waiting for a referee, dressed more like the high priest of a temple than a hardboiled arbiter of a rousing match, to award her the palm of victory.

As for the clothes worn by the women grapplers, they were virtually "arimases," which is Japanese for "there ain't any." About their waists they wore a girlish kimono in Japanese wrestling circles as a "funoshi," the nearest western equivalent of which is a "K-string."

Beyond that—well, there wasn't any more.

At the conclusion of the program, the reporter sought an interview and got it. The women told him that they went from one city of Japan to another giving exhibitions and that their shows always went well. "We don't have to worry about the price of rice," answered Tokaido Hiss when questioned as to the profits of the venture.

"How strong are you?" was the next question.

"We are a lot stronger than most men," chanted the quartette in chorus. "We can toss you ten feet away without half trying. If you don't believe it, just come and try."

Honolulu To Set Watches by Whistle

(By Universal Service)

HONOLULU, April 6.—Honoluluans will hereafter set their watches by the siren whistle, placed on the top of the new Aloia tower and blown by compressed air. The territorial harbor board has abandoned its plans for a time ball to be dropped each day at noon from the lower mast and has announced that a siren will be installed, powerful enough to be heard by all the sirens at Waikiki beach, five miles distant.

The second game of the newly formed Merchants Bowling league will be staged and the Pinkerton O'Rourke alleys on Friday night according to an announcement.

These games will see the Riel Oak Floor team battle the Schrader's furniture team and the Ben Malik Clothiers meet the Harry's Barber shop team.

So far the teams have been showing some wonderful bowling and have met the approval of the hundreds of fans in this city.

A tip to men who roll their own

YOU'VE known that Prince Albert is the finest tobacco that ever tumbled into a pipe, but did you ever try it in a home-rolled cigarette? Say, now! You've got a cigarette-experience coming. P. A. makes the kind of cigarette you can write home about, for a fact.

Just get yourself a tidy red tin or a toppy red bag of P. A. today. Put a pinch in a paper and do your finger-exercise. Notice that it doesn't spill all over the place or blow away on the first breeze. That's because Prince Albert is crimp-cut and stays put.

A cigarette made with P. A. not only rolls easier—it burns better and, what is very important, it tastes better. Cool and sweet and fragrant. Doesn't burn the tongue or parch the throat. The Prince Albert process prevents that. Go ahead and roll 'em with P. A.!

Step around the corner today and get some P. A. Make some great cigarettes with it. And, to vary your smoke-menu, tump a load of this wonderful tobacco into the bowl of your old jimmy-pipe. No matter how you smoke it, P. A. gives you the glad hand in every perfect puff.

PRINCE ALBERT

Gall Bladder Troubles Gone! To Whom It May Concern: For over a year I had trouble in my gall bladder, pain on my right side, vomiting and a general rundown condition. On February 23rd of this year I had an attack of appendicitis, the pain of which was so severe that I could not sleep at night. I came to see the Chew & Chew herbaria and after taking one dose of herbs I was greatly relieved. I continued to take the herbs for a few more weeks and I am all well now. March 14, 1926.

HEEDED MOTHER'S ADVICE Oakland, Cal. Feb. 26, 1926.

For more than a year I suffered from hemorrhage from a tumor. During this time I was treated by several physicians, all of whom agreed that an operation was the only thing that could help me. Neither my husband nor I liked the idea of the knife.

Upon the advice of my mother who, after having an operation on the right side, the wound forming a fistula which had never healed for 14 years, had found complete relief and fistula healed by drinking the Fong Wan Herbs, I decided to try them.

Owing to my terrible condition and my extremely poor health, it took about six months before I was entirely well. I am now in splendid health and my old trouble have been completely vanquished.

I formerly lived at 1805 Howard street, San Francisco, but have recently moved to Oakland. My phone number is Market 6569.

MONARCHISTS IN POLAND TO DEMAND KING

By KARL H. von WIEGAND
(By Universal Service)

BERLIN, April 6.—With the slogan "I demand a Kingdom" and the vague dreams of a return of some of the old glories of a Polish court in Warsaw, an active monarchist campaign is beginning in Poland. A "Union of Polish Monarchists" has now been formed to better serve the cause.

Hitherto, the Polish monarchist or "royalists" as the call themselves, have been divided into two groups or parties. The one had its headquarters in Posen, the other in Warsaw. Now they have united.

President of the "Supreme Council" is Wladyslaw Niemcewicz, former Crown Marshal in the National Polish Council. Vice-president is General Raszewski, former commander of an Army Corps in Posen.

Now the Christian National party which has 22 deputies in the "Sejm" or parliament, has adopted a resolution that "in view of the composition of the population of Poland and her geographical situation, the necessity and possibility of a restoration of the hereditary monarchy in connection with the glorious Constitution of May 3, 1791, is given."

The party announces that it will in future participate in the legal furtherance of the monarchist idea in Poland.

Importance attaches to the action of this party because it is the party of the large land holders in Poland. The announcement that this party has gone over to monarchism for Poland created something of a sensation.

El Cerrito Easter Services Attract Large Audience

Seven new members were taken into the church and ten were baptized.

Coal Is Blamed For the Changes In the Weather

(By Universal Service)

BERLIN, April 6.—Modern industry is changing the climate of the world.

It is making the winters warmer, the summers cooler and the weather worse.

That is the assertion of Professor Erich Marx, of Leipzig, writing in the Berliner Tageblatt.

The cause of it all, says Professor Marx, is coal. The vast amount burned up every year is belching forth vast quantities of carbon gas, increasing the amount already in the air by 8-10th every year.

Carbon gas, he says, acts like a glass house around the earth, absorbing the heat of the sun but keeping it from escaping again.

Part of the new carbon gas is absorbed again by the sea and by the plants, says Professor Marx, but despite this the total already in the air is being steadily increasing.

It has been a common complaint especially in Europe, that the weather is no longer "what it was before the war."

President Coolidge will be the principal speaker Thursday morning at the first business session of the congress.

Mayor Forced to Keep Two Offices

(By Universal Service)

YORKVILLE, O., April 6.—The mayor of this town must have two offices—one in Jefferson county where most of the town is situated—and the other in Belmont county, where the remainder of the residents live.

That was brought out when John Groza, of Martin's Ferry, was brought here for trial on a charge of interfering with local dry raiders who visited the home of a neighbor of Groza's. Groza entered the home and was confronted with a revolver in the hands of a stranger. Not knowing, he claims, that the man was an officer, he took the gun away from him.

The Town Hall is in Jefferson county, but as the alleged offense was committed in Belmont county, the mayor moved his court to the Belmont county office and fined Groza $100 and costs.

First Presbyterian Church Names New Group of Officers

At the annual meeting of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church last night at the church new officers were elected to handle the destinies of the church for the coming year.

The new officers include: Elmer William Patterson, H. C. Bowman and F. J. Stack; Deacon, J. E. Snoddy; Trustees, W. A. Boone, Charles St. John, J. A. Long, Jack Lee, W. P. Drumme, A. H. Poage and Henry Engleking.

Work for the coming year was discussed by P. M. Sanford, Bert X. Tucker and others.

Reports on the treasury of the church and the different organizations were read.

A delicious dinner was served by the Ladies Aid of the church to the crowd that had assembled.

The Rev. Earl W. Haney had charge of the meeting.

Graft Cases In Dry Forces Are Bared at Quiz

pointed upon political recommendations and endorsements from churches, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Anti-Saloon League. This system was so unsatisfactory, he said, that he found it necessary to "clean house" when he took charge.

Diversions of industrial alcohol to the bootleg trade is the most serious problem of prohibition enforcement. The bootleggers are now making beverage alcohol out of "non-freeze" mixtures for automobiles and radiators and even use embalming fluid and wood alcohol.

Corrupt users of industrial alcohol and dishonest brewers are ruining the businesses of honest concerns by cut-price competition.

"Fake druggists" also are driving legitimate druggists out of business by "splitting" whiskey with alcohol and selling the sick on physicians' prescriptions, while the bootleggers get the good whiskey. Ninety-eight per cent of the whiskey captured by prohibition agents has been found "impure," Andrews said.

In the past less than five per cent of the liquor smuggled over the Canadian and Mexico borders has been captured. Andrews urged an augmented border patrol system.

In urging his national referendum on prohibition in connection with the general election in 1928, Senator Edge of New Jersey cited at today's hearings the Democratic platform plank for a referendum on the League of Nations as a precedent.

Julien Codman of Boston, acting as "prosecution attorney" for the case, renewed, in writing, his request for the summoning of several wet witnesses. He set forth specifically what each of the proposed witnesses were expected to testify.

With General Andrews on the stand, Codman took up the discharge of prohibition officials. The dry czar said that if the 875 employees dismissed "for cause" 20 had been discharged for making false statements in their applications for employment. In some instances it was found that the officials had prison records, which resulted in their dismissal. Of the others 121 had been discharged for alleged bribery, extortion and soliciting money from bootleggers, eighty for making false statements in the expense accounts and sixty-one officers, eight clerks and one attorney for conspiracy and collusion.

These conspiracy cases Andrews explained arose largely out of the illegal withdrawal of liquor from government warehouses. He said that such cases were less frequent since the liquor had been concentrated in a few warehouses.

"There are thirty denaturing plants," said Andrews. "They are practically bootlegging establishments."

Business men generally have recognized the need of conserving time. It has been said that "he who uses time best, succeeds best", and in order to conserve time, inventive geniuses of the nation have perfected machinery for almost every mechanical activity in man's daily life.

The modern housewife with her clubs, lodge work and the time necessary to properly raise her children, must spend less time in her PRISON—the Kitchen.

She must have conveniences of the latest type in that room and most essential of all is her STOVE. That stove must be qualified to handle all the cooking that is necessary to be done at one time, it must be compact, it must be easily kept clean, it must be economical in the consumption of fuel, in order to keep down the household expenses. And last but not least it must be an article of beauty.

Such a Stove is the WEDGEWOOD Pungalow model pictured above. More than these things it is built in the west, for the people of the west and for the climatic conditions peculiar to the west. It is guaranteed, not only by ourselves but by the manufacturers, to give full satisfaction in even the slightest detail.

Come in and let us demonstrate the many points of Wedgewood construction.
